PART A: GENERAL

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Wellness Management emerged as a priority due to increasing recognition that the health and wellbeing of employees directly impacts on productivity of the entire organization. As employees are the life-blood of the organization it is vital to help them produce at their optimum levels. The World Health Organization’s Global Plan of Action on Workers Health 2008-2017 states that workers represent half the world’s population and they are major contributors to economic development. It calls for effective interventions to prevent occupational hazards and to protect and promote health at the workplace and access to occupational health services.

1.2 Work is central to people's well-being, in addition to providing income; work can pave the way for broader social and economic advancement, strengthening individuals, their families and communities. The Public Service seeks to contribute to the Decent Work Agenda to achieve sustainable development that is centred on people. Decent Work is a key element to build fair, equitable and inclusive societies being based around the principles of employment creation, workers’ rights, equality between women and men, social protection and social dialogue. This Agenda addresses the four priority areas of tackling unemployment, underemployment and poverty; the role of social protection in poverty-reducing development; social exclusion and the effects of HIV & AIDS; and tackling HIV & AIDS in the world of work.

1.3 The ILO Promotional Framework for Occupational Safety Convention No.187 June 2006, provides for the creation of a National Policy on occupational safety and health; National System for Occupational safety and health; National Programme on Occupational safety and health; and National Preventive safety and health culture in which the right to a healthy and safe environment is respected at all levels. In accordance with the ILO Promotional Framework, the Public Service seeks to develop policies, systems, programmes and a preventative culture to promote the wellbeing of Public Servants.

1.4 Both personal and workplace factors influence overall wellness and employee performance. Individual wellness in this policy is viewed as the promotion of the physical, social, emotional, occupational, spiritual, financial, and intellectual wellness of individuals. This is attained by creating an organisational climate and culture that is conducive to wellness and comprehensive identification of psycho-social health risk.

1.5 The development of this policy, based on the EHW Strategic Framework for the Public Service (2008) was a departure from the Employee Assistance Programme (EAP), which was limited in scope and practice and was more reactive than proactive. This Wellness Management programme is largely preventative in nature focusing on both primary (avoid the risk or condition) and secondary (minimize the effects of the condition) prevention. This is against the analysis done by many epidemiological and health information and medical aid cost driver trend reports such as the Key Health Trends from the Government Employee Medical Scheme (GEMS) and other medical aid schemes. It confirms the trends of psychosocial problems, organisational climate assessments of hostile physical and psychosocial working environments.

1.6 This policy serves as a broad guide for government Public Service organisations in responding to Wellness in the Public Service world of work. It specifically provides line departments with guidelines on how to implement Wellness Management programmes in the workplace. Practically, the policy seeks to strengthen and improve the efficiency of existing services, programmes and infrastructure and introduce additional interventions based on recent advances in knowledge. The policy should be read in conjunction with the EH&W Strategic Framework (2008), Step-by-Step Implementation Guide and the Systems M&E Tool.

2. SCOPE

This policy is applicable to all National and Provincial Departments as contemplated in the Public Service Act 1994.

3. OBJECTIVES

5.4 Focus on all levels of employment.
5.5 Cohesiveness with HRD processes.
5.6 Policy coherence: policy measures should not contradict the measures of other related policies in the Public Service, e.g Department of Health, Social Development etc.
